Fourteenth Sunday after Pentecost

From the Rector: That the Poor will be with us Always

Every now and then it just gets to me...the persistent procession of those in need who file through this office every day. They are behind on their rent and about to be evicted...or they haven't paid a power bill (Alabama Power Co. is one of the most expensive electric utilities in the country as is Mobile Gas)...their water is about to be cut off...It never ends, and it wouldn't matter how much money I had in my discretionary account....It is never enough....many who visit us looking for help are either homeless or just about to be....some just bow their heads and weep when I tell them I am out of funds. Many are addicts seeking any way possible to maintain their habit. Perhaps the problem is amplified by our sagging economy, because all so-called "help agencies" tell me they are pressed financially as well...the problem of poverty seems greater than the solution; always has; now it seems overwhelming. Must it be always this way? Shall the poor be with us always....a bone to pick with the gospel writer.

Another observation is that many, if not the majority of these people that come to us are sick...persistent colds, bronchitis, diabetes, hypertension, obesity, anxiety and depression, and many other maladies...We are asked to pay for prescription deductibles all the time for blood pressure medication, medication for depression, for pain...many of these people are quite at the end of their rope....I never say the words to these people, "Jesus loves you", because they would be hollow and dismissive....but I do believe that we as the body of Christ must find a way to love them, and by love, I mean that we are to see to their well-being and dignity....I believe Jesus loves them, but how does that love become manifest when it seems so insidiously indifferent?

The Mobile Race Relations Committee watched a documentary recently entitled In Sickness and in Wealth in which a medical study conducted in Louisville, Kentucky discovered that one's health and well-being is directly related to one's socio-economic status...I always thought the greatest problem in our health-care system was access...and access to primary health care is a serious problem; but the greater issue lies in who is getting sick the most, and who has the disproportionate advantage of staying well. The study clearly shows average life expectancy tracking directly with one's socio-economic status...There are some obvious reasons for this...lack of insurance coverage, lack of access to affordable healthy food in poor neighborhoods...the stress that comes with joblessness, or with extremely demanding menial work....On the other side of the coin, people who made high incomes, even though encountering high levels of stress, generally had a sense of empowerment, a sense of control over their destinies...and as a control group they are healthier. Life expectancy from top to bottom of the economic ladder varied fifteen years. So empowerment and a sense of well-being socially and economically is at the heart of the matter.

The documentary points out that in the mid nineteen twenties life expectancy in this country was forty five years old. After the government instituted the New Deal and the jobs programs after the Great Depression and after full employment during world war two, life expectancy jumped by fifteen years in the mid fifties. The U.S. in the late seventies ranked first in life expectancy...now we are out of the top twenty compared to other countries...The growing disparity of wealth of this country, the shrinking middle class, and the intransigence of being poor and staying poor, is making us sick....and causing many to lose hope...spend a day here and you will see.

So what do we do to love the least among us...We need to empower them to live productive and dignified lives...a meaningful jobs bill now being debated would be a good start. We need our politicians, and we need to tell them so, to work jointly on addressing the gross inequities and injustices in our country...injustices and inequities that have gotten much worse in the last twenty five years...fair taxation, fair lending practices, adequate health-care, good schools, employment opportunities....and a chance for hope and a renewal of a sense of destiny...surely as people of faith we have something to say to our leadership whom we elect, that we can't let the gap between rich and poor grow any longer....There are some who would wish the Federal Government "out of our business"....Quite the opposite is needed, just like we needed it in 1929. We need our elected leadership to act with compassion, imagination and above all in solidarity for the good of the whole, especially for the sick and voiceless among us....get going for God's sake!...I want to say to the ones who come to our door, desperate,.... that Jesus loves you, and mean it.

New Directors of Youth Ministries

If you have not yet heard, Scott and Liz Kirby are the new Directors of Youth Ministries at All Saints. Brief biographies are printed below their picture. Their first 'official' day was Sunday when they met with both middle and high school youth and their Sunday School teachers to begin planning the EYC year. There was a packed house and a lot of energy in the meeting; this promises to be a great year! Please welcome Liz and Scott!

Liz Kirby manages several local medical clinics, including Greater Mobile Urgent Care and Grand Bay Medical Clinic. She grew up in Birmingham and has lived here in Mobile for about 2 years. She and Scott have a house in midtown and love Mobile! In her free time Liz enjoys running, reading, working in the yard, and both she and Scott like playing with their dog, Jack. She's excited about working with the youth group and the opportunity to learn together!

Scott Kirby is an environmental engineering consultant with Environmental Resources Management (ERM) here in town. His work takes him across the country but he usually gets to enjoy his weekends in Mobile. He grew up in Hartselle, Alabama and has lived in Mobile for the last three years. Before coming here he received a doctorate degree in environmental engineering from the University of Alabama. In his free time he enjoys woodworking in his shop, going to the gym, and reading. He is thrilled to become a part of the EYC and suspects he may get more out of it than the kids will!

The Episcopal Church welcomes you

Many thanks to all those who came to eat at the Atlanta Bread Company on Monday night. Your gracious tips for my more-or-less adequate job of waiting tables helped raise over $1700 for Family Promise of Coastal Alabama! My total was $560; an 'unattached' Episcopalian donated $250, which was matched by his place of work, and the other 'celebrity' wait staff said I had earned that tip as well (my grand total: $1060)!

The schedule for the rest of the participating restaurants is listed here:

- Dew Drop – Wednesday, Sept. 14; 6 – 8pm
  - Wintzell's Oyster House – Monday, Sept. 19; 6 – 8pm
  - Cafe 615 – Wednesday, Sept. 21; 6 – 8pm
  - True Midtown Kitchen – Monday, Sept. 26; 6 – 8pm
- Jim Flowers will be a celebrity waiter at True Midtown Kitchen. Why not help Jim and see if he can raise as much or even more for this great organization!

- Mary Robert

If you have any gently used toys appropriate for infants to age 4 that you would like to donate, please bring them to the nursery. She is also looking for cash donations, so that new toys can be purchased. The goal is to raise $150.

If you would like to donate a new or used toy, please consider the following:

- * wooden chunk puzzles
- * wooden blocks
- * large Duplo Lego's (no small pieces)
- * crayons and coloring books
- * classic toys
- * anything by Melissa and Doug
- * busy beads
- * toys that you can push or pull
- * extra batteries

For donations and/or questions, please contact Elyzabeth (elyzabethw@aol.com).
